WHAT DO YOU MEAN "JACK OF ALL TRADES?"

Roger Giles, whose intentions were better than his performances, was the first jack of all trades, and he proved to be master of none. Roger, who lived in London in Elizabethan days, opened a shop and advertised to all the town that he was ready to sell cordials, teach riding, trim ladies' nails, improve people's morals, teach the "shotish," sell tripe and do a great many other things—all for a small fee. His patrons soon found out that he could do nothing well. So London dubbed him "jack of all trades and master of none," and people of his kind have been called that ever since.

SOMETHING DOING

Some very noticeable improvements are being made by the Rev. C. A. Tuttle about the M. E. parsonage lawn and gardens. Stumps and dead trees are being removed and several shade and fruit trees and shrubbery will be planted in their place. The agricultural and horticultural features of these premises have been neglected for several years.—Lyons Cor. Burlington Democrat.

Emilio Rabasa, chairman of Huerta's peace delegates, is talking of Huerta's elimination with a buoyancy that indicates that Emilio may reside in Canada for some time.
